New campaign stresses consequences of serving alcohol to teens

10/20/05

The arrest earlier this week of a Brighton mother and her son for allegedly hosting an underage drinking party is drawing attention to the consequences parents can face. Thursday morning county officials launched a campaign called Parents Who Host Lose the Most. The initiative is a joint effort of Monroe County and the local chapter of the National Council of Alcoholism and Drug Dependency.

The towns of Brighton, Perinton, Penfield, Pittsford and Webster are participating in the campaign.

The goal is to educate parents on the consequences to serving alcohol to minors. "So people in the community have to know that not only is this not a good idea, you can be engaging in criminal behavior and if you are, we will do everything we can to investigate you, arrest you and prosecute you for this type of behavior," said Monroe County District Attorney Michael Green.
